It allowed them to harvest wild rice one day each year	Live and get what they needed like rice	They could fish and hunt
Allowed them to get wild rice.	To protest for their right of cultivating the rice on the land that they own	Pick rice
It allowed them to collect wild rice	Harvest wild rice and fish in Rainy Lake	Hunt and gather their food from their own land.
Gave them power and strength to tell people that they wanted their land and wild rice back, so that they can feed their families	To keep their land	Harvest wild rice
It allowed them to go to the river and get wild rice.	Hunt, fish and harvest anywhere in Minnesota	Go onto Rainy Lake and harvest, or practice the cultural activities.
To harvest and live there	The treaty allowed them to gather wild rice only one day a year.	Gather wild rice
To collect rice	It allowed the natives to collect their rice on Rainy Lake (now Voyageur National Park) for one day and have an important cultural event, but they didn't just want a day to be the tribe they were, they wanted their treaty rights all the time.	Harvest wild rice on rainy lake
Collect wild rice for one day.	It allowed them to fish and get food for giving up some of their land. Today they can only do it once a week even though the treaty has not been modified.	Keep hunting, gathering, harvesting the wild rice.
Go to there land and be able to do what they should have been able to do for many years.	They got to go and collect wild rice.	Pick wild rice
Collect rice, food and other necessities for them to survive in places were the US government took the land	Go onto Rainy lake to harvest like they used to.	It allowed them to farm as much wild rice as they wanted
To come out whenever and so they could do whatever they wanted to do on there land	Go back to their old homes and see their land once more.	Get the rice from rainy lake, also put posters protesting the treaty.
For picking the rices and only do it for one day.	Farm the rice without a special permit.	Collect rice on rainy lake
To go out and collect rice one day of the year	Harvest the wild rice on rainy lake	Collect wild rice from the lakes
Harvest the wild rice	They couldn't gather wild rice on some lakes	To get more freedom.
Most of Ojibwe land went to the government	Harvest the rice in rainy lake.	Go harvest wild rice
Get wild rice	Collect wild rice for a day and a day only	It allowed them 1 day to harvest wild rice. Only one
Get rice from the lake		To have a day that they can get there rice from in a river in Minnesota because it was illegal and the Americans don't believe in treaty's
Harvest rice once a year		It allowed them to collect all the rice they wanted.
Collect rice		It allowed them to go wherever they want to do what they're supposed to do
		Harvest wild rice

The phrase Historical Trauma was used by some people in the film. What do you think it means?

Answered: 100 Skipped: 0

That the Europeans where not fair to the treaties	Something very bad that happened in history	All of what happened with with the land that the natives had, the money given to the government and the land given.
I think it means stuff not true from the past	Something bad that happened in history, along time ago.	The impact of history on a further generation and it's affects on how the people of generation feel about their culture and the world that they live in.
Bad things that happened in history	I think historical trauma means something bad that happened back then	How the Europeans traveled to Minnesota and forced change to the things Native Americans had been doing for years
Something the did as a native	Big Events that happen in history	Painful or hard stuff in the past that their ancestors had to deal with or that happened to them
A past event that had something to do with mistreating people in one of the worst ways possible	What people think actually happened in the past.	A huge problem in history
A part of history really cruel	About the treaty's that we're signed and what allowed to do.	Something terrible that has happened that affects people now even if it happened many years ago.
Real meaning of something	Something traumatic that happens in the past.	I think it means exactly what it sounds like—trauma in our history, or drama or difficult times in history.
History problems	Treaties that where not fair and made the Indian tribes angry.	It means battles/arguments between 2 nations. They were mentioning that they were fighting with the police to be able to get their own food even though there was a treaty.
Trauma that affected the natives history	Something bad or Rong that people have done over hundreds of years like what hitler did	I think it is events in history that negatively affected a group of people.
What happed to them in the past	A big issue in the history of our country	Something in history that caused people to have conflict, something that damaged a person of nation.
That it was not fair and not right	There rights	Something that has happened in the past that has caused a problem or unsatisfaction.
Affected by historical events	The bad or sad in some people	The treaties being abused and ignored.
That Americans don't respect the natives, that were here way before them even though it's their land they took away.	When something really bad happens in history	When something so bad happens it becomes a historical event of sadness
I think Historical Trauma well means when something like a horror or something that struck people heart in the past is historical trauma.	Bad things that have happened in the past
That they suffered a lot when this moment in history happened.	Taking something that natives used
I think it means... they are communicating in some language	They want there freedom
That in the older days there was some trauma.	The sad or bad events from the past
It means something was on the treaty and not allowing what it said on the treaty	Sad stuff that has happened in our history
	The horrible things that happened with the natives

Do you believe it is important to learn about the history of the First Nation Peoples that settled the land on which we live? And why?

Answered: 100 Skipped: 0

Yes because than people can learn about our past

Yes because we should know about the people who we took land from

Yes because how else would we know why the European people were not the first to live on this land

Ya cause then we can understand what happened before we were alive

Yes so that we understand that this isn't our land and what Columbus did to them (the natives)

Yes because they are the people who made Minnesota Minnesota

So we know how we used to live back in the older days

Yes because it is our history

Yes, because it teaches. Kids that not everything about Columbus was good

Yes to know more about the land

Yes because it is important to learn about the past and how are grate country was founded

Why we took their land away and why we haven't given it back yet

Yes because they were here before us and their people too and they have feelings we can't just forget about them

Yes because we shouldn't only know about what's in the future but as well as what has gone on in the past. I believe that we need to know about the history of our own state!

Yes because everyone thinks Columbus is a good man but actually he's not.

Yes the native Americans and deserve to have rights! And the Americans and other people still need to understand why the history is what it is

Yes because then we are aware about what happened and know why those things happened.

Yes. Because we need to know what actually happened

Yes, because it changes the way that people think of the U.S. government.

Yes I think it's good to lean about the history, because everyone needs to know the natives side and their story and what happened to them.

Yes I think it's important because a lot of people don't even know about the history of their own state that they live in. Also it's good to know about the history.

Yes, people should learn what had happened in the past so that they know what to think about and to do.

Yes because then you know how we actually got our land and how our lives are today.

Yes because I think we need to know what happened so that we can understand about the treaty's and the rights of them.

Yes because people should not be taught things that aren't true and we deserve to know what has happened in the past.

Yes, because I want to know the truth instead of all this junk that said that we owned this whole country by legal rights.

Yes because I don't want to grow up thinking that Columbus was good and knowing this I see the real story of the country not a made up one.

Yes because without knowing we wouldn't haves any awareness for the people who are affected by it and by knowing about it we can help change the laws

Yes because if someone from China came and said we don't want to do a treaty with you because of what you did with the native Americans you would have no idea what they were talking about

I think it is very important. I think that because people should know how it was like back then. I didn't even know till now.

Yes because it tells you that no government of place can be perfect and nice

Yes because we should know the good and the bad that Americans have done to the land we has

Yes so it doesn't happen again

Yes so we don't do the same thing again

Yes because it's good to learn what we did instead of thinking Columbus was a good person or that Indians are bad people

Yes because it is what has happened in America

Do you believe it is important to learn about the history of the First Nation Peoples that settled the land on which we live? And why?

Answered: 100 Skipped: 0

Yes because we are taught that we found a beautiful land but really we took it from others

I think you should learn about the first people that lived here so you can know about the history of the beginning of our country

Yes, it is important to realize that the land that we live in was taken away from the native people that once lived there. It is also important to be aware of the culture and lives of other people.

Yes, so we can understand how Minnesota came to be and get an overall perspective of what happened

Yes because we know about the past then and how our land has changed over time.

Yes, it is not something we can just let slip by and forget it, it's a big part of American history

I think it is important because we should know about the mistakes we have made in our past so we don't repeat them.

It is very important to know the history of the native peoples because it is on a way our history, since we've occupied this land. We should know about what really happened, what the Europeans and first Americans really did. The native peoples live on this land and we should recognize why that's important.

I think it is important because they were here before us and before we came the land was not as polluted and used as it is now.

I think it is important because they were here first and they should have more right to the land than they do now.

Yes, because they were here first and in my opinion they should still have all of their land and we shouldn't have taken it. Plus it teaches us a lot about our history.

Yes, because they were the first people that came to our land and the Americans told them that they had to live their lives somewhere else.

I believe it is very important because we can learn from our past what works and what doesn't.

Yes, because it teaches us respect for our land and that we must respect the promises and rules that we make

It is important to learn about the Natives because we are living on their land and we should know their culture, background and religion if we are living in the state that they first were.

Yes because they are part of the history of our country and helped the development of the United States.

Yes because that can give us a true appreciation and understanding of the sacrifices that were made so we can have a roof over our heads.

Yes, because they were here first and we should learn about them. Also because we should know what the Europeans did to them.

Yes because if we are learning about the history of our country, we should start with the people who were here first: Native Americans

I think it is very important because this land and everything on it that we have was theirs, and it needs to be shown the injustice that happened to them.

Yes because otherwise we would go blind to what it took for us to get here and the situation we have forced others into

I think it's very important because it helps us understand better what really happened in our country and the traumatic events that went on in our own state.

Yes because they still live here, we made treaties for their land so it is our job to make sure we stay true to our half of the treaty

Yes, because we should know what the native people of this land had to go through.

Yes! It is extremely important. I have native ancestry (though it's pretty far back so I'm like 0% now) so that's how I originally got interested. Even if you don't have indigenous blood, we live on their land, we took it, we STOLE it so of course it's incredibly important that we know their history.

I think so because we used to be taught about how it was a good thing that the Europeans came but really they did horrible things

I believe it is important because we need to know what we did wrong and learn from our mistakes so it never happens again

Yes, it's not our land, and we should be realizing who the land belongs to.

Do you believe it is important to learn about the history of the First Nation Peoples that settled the land on which we live? And why?

Answered: 100 Skipped: 0

Yes because it is still a issue the treaty rights and even when it is resolved it is a part of our culture and there's.

Yes, it is the history of our nation.

Yes because then we know what actually happens. Normally.

Yes. So that we know what happened for us to have this land

Because they had this land to them selves and had many interesting cultures. They used their land for what they needed until it was all taken away by the Americans because they wanted it. They did not let the indigenious peoples stay so they basically shued them away. We should because many of us live in that land that was taken away. They have the right to live in their place.

Yes because you need to hear so many different sides of the story

It is incredibly important. Because it is the history of our nation and it is the truth.

I think it is important because we should know what they've been through

Yes because they had ways of life that are different and have the right to follow the treatys

Yes because it is important that people know what the government did.

Yes! Because it teaches us about what really happened and what happened after the treaties

Yes because if we didn't learn about that we would never find out about people who could be us if they lived in 2018

Yes because they are a part of our history and we should learn what happened.

Yes it is important for us to realize what is was like back then and how much our country has grown. Also to know our culture and how natives worked very hard back then.

Yes because we should know what had to happen to have this land

Yes, because we should learn how an fair we are being and so we know the other side of the story.

Yes because I think it's important for people to know what and why it happened

Because the American government is taking their land that they settled on first. It important to remember who was there first.

Yes because it's important to learn about Minnesota's past compared to what we live like now

Yes because this landed belonged to them they are a part of the history of the land, they owned the land first.

Yes, I think it is important to know how we got to where we are today and now we also know not to repeat some of the mistakes that people made before

Yes, because white people stole this land from the native Americans. Not being taught that is a form of lying.

Yes because we are just ignoring them instead of helping them get some land back we just brush them off like they are a little speck in the entire world

I think it is important because then people can know what's going on and then they can decide if they want to change the situation or not.

Yes because there's a lot we can learn. There's always a good side and a bad side to each story.

Yes because if we did not know them we would not care about the native people and why they have little lands and have casino

Yes because they need there land back

Yes. I think it's important because not all people know what happened and it important we understand what happened to the natives

Yes because we should now what they went through with the treaties.

Yes. They were first we stole.

Yes, because they are part of history.

Yes because if we don't we won't understand the fact that it was their land and we took it. By knowing that we can make that right

Yes, because we need to know what they had to go through

Yes because everyone should know how they were treated

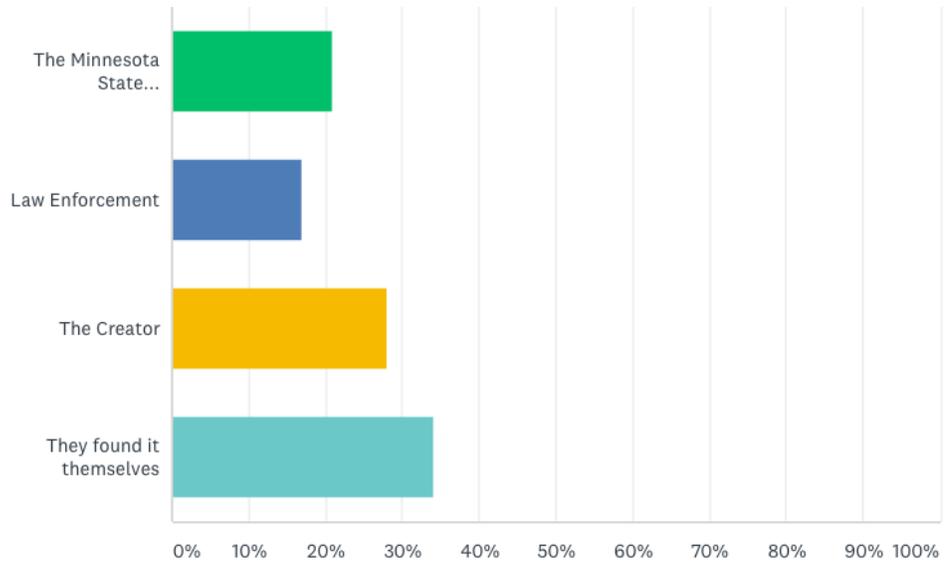

Yes. It is important because we need to learn about things ages past to move forward.

Yes because they were treated unfairly

It really sent the message

I really liked the film and how they showed the different native traditions.

Dear filmmakers– I really appreciate your effort into this film, that this history is so important to you, and that you're willing to spread this important history to us. Thank you and great job.

Amazing film, taught me a lot about the native Americans in Minnesota.

I thought it was a good film because they had opinions from a lot of people.

I thought it was really good and I liked how you got the natives point of view

It was really interesting because I got to hear the opinions of Indians and their thoughts on the treaties.

It was very educational however it felt a little slow at the beginning.

It was a sad film going over rough topics for some people and it speaks the truth about what really happened and what the natives think.

It was amazing to hear what happened from the voices of the Natives

It was thought provoking.

I think that you could relate it a little bit better to things that are happening in today's world.

It was very interesting and it showed the history of the American natives.

It was great and I want to watch more

It was powerful and moving, and it shows just how much people are willing to ignore of our past.

It was good but a little boring for younger kids and some people were hard to understand

I think the film was really well done and really depicts how the natives struggled with these treaties, and I learned a lot!

I liked the different point of views by the different people

It's amazing

It was really amazing and I loved the clips of the actual natives talking about it.

I liked how they speakers were native because it showed the point of view of the victims instead of the do-ers(Americans)

I think it was a good film for learning but if it could go a bit slower it would've been easier for me to comprehend everything that they said

I like the quality of the film and how deep the story goes.

It was fascinating and eye opening.

It was a great film, i liked it a lot.

I really liked that the actual people from the tribe were talking

It was good and full of really detailed details

I think this film is amazing because this film shows people the truth. The truth that could help everyone help get the indigenous peoples rights back

It was really good to watch because it's hard to understand what actually happened

It's amazing. Plain and simple

It was really good, but it was kind of hard to understand some of the people who were talking

Good but I already watched the hole thing two months before

It was interesting, cool, and well made.

It's about the unfairness of the treaties on the side of the Indians

I think it was very interesting and cool to learn new things.

I thought it was really good because of the 1st grade kid talking about Christopher Columbus.

I thought that the film was very good. It went over some things that I never knew about but then it also gave me some different points of view of what I learned in class

I like that the one lady talked about her son and the teacher it is so stupid of what the teacher said

Mabey add more personal stories.

I think the film was rly interesting and good to help learn some stuff that not everyone might know

Very interesting, and surprising

The film was very informational and very interesting to learn about Minnesota's past

Very interesting, Cool.

It was really good but sometimes a little boring.

An interesting display of interesting, important (and slightly disturbing) facts.

That was great please keep making more of it

I think it was interesting but a little boring too.

I think it was a great film teaching us more about the story

Idk

It was good learning of what happened with the natives.

Very interesting and informative

I think this film was good and interesting.

Great film maybe more on the history not just present day, and put this in theaters.

It was good, and interesting, but could have a bit more structure
